Fairfield Museum and History Center Opens Summer Camp Registration

FAIRFIELD (APRIL 16) The Fairfield Historical Society is pleased to announce that its summer camp registration process is now open. The camp, called Colonial Kids Camp, will run four weeks in June and July. Campers will explore the way children in the past lived and played. Fun, hands-on activities such as dipping candles, playing 19th century games, churning butter and creating silhouettes are just a few ways Colonial Kids Camp brings the past to life.

The camp, which sold out last year, runs in three hour increments, five days a week. FHS offers seven sessions to choose from: for campers aged 9-13, sessions are offered the weeks of June 25, July 9, and July 16; for campers aged 6-8, sessions are offered the weeks of June 25, July 9, July 16 and July 23. Call 259-1598 for details, or visit www.fairfieldhs.org to download a registration form. Call now, spots are filling up quickly!

Colonial Kids Camp runs just prior to the opening of the new Fairfield Museum and History Center, which looks forward to offering programs and services that benefit the entire community. The Museum, located at 370 Beach Road, will celebrate its grand opening on September 16 2007.
